If a stallion has semen which is to be retained in the United States and used after the exportation of the stallion, or if foals conceived using stored or transported semen will be registered after the exportation of the stallion, all Transported/ Stored Semen Service Certificates required must be purchased prior to the exportation of the stallion and prior to the submission of the Export Endorsement request.

If a mare holds a valid Embryo Transfer permit all of the necessary Embryo Transfer (ET) Certificates must be issued prior to the completion of the Export Endorsement. Once the Export Endorsement has been issued the ET permit is cancelled and additional ET certificates are not available for purchase.

DNA typing is not required by AHA prior to exportation. However, we recommend that all horses be DNA typed prior to exportation for identification and other purposes. In addition, stallions that have covered mares prior to exportation or have semen stored to be used for future breedings and mares that produce foals prior to exportation should be DNA typed to avoid possible difficulties in registering foals in the United States.* For foals born 2002 and later, DNA type testing is required for parentage verification.

Some foreign registries may require that a horse be DNA typed prior to exportation and re-sampled after importation to their country for identification purposes. Exporters are advised to contact the appropriate foreign registry to determine any specific requirements.*
